

Gya' Wa' Tlaab Healing Centre Society

Referral Package

To: All Referral Agents

The Early Recovery/Stabilization Program at Gya' Wa' Tlaab Healing Centre is based upon a Holistic Model approach and incorporates the Harm Reduction Principles into all of its programming. Following are the details:

- The holistic model is consistent with the public health approach.
- It recognizes the complex set of factors that impact addictive behaviour.
- It also recognizes the complex relationship between addictive behaviour and harmful consequences for both the individual and community.
- It accepts and works with individual differences in client characteristics in both preventing and responding to harms. These include risks associated with gender, age, cultural identity and concurrent mental health issues.
- This approach incorporates the strengths of the various models of the past and present, and uses these various insights to effect change with clients.
- The goal is to reduce the impact of problem consequences.

The Gya' Wa' Tlaab Healing Centre is honoured to offer this holistic healing model approach to all First Nations, Inuit and other people of Canada who choose to attend our program that alternates between eight (8) and seven (7) week programs. This program can be defined as an assessment, orientation, and readiness phase to treatment for clients. The program utilizes the following correlated program resources to assist clients: Acu-Detox, Equine Therapy, Physical Fitness Instruction, Psycho-educational group facilitation, Mental Health Counselling, Methadone Prescribing Physician, Primary Care Physician, and Culturally Appropriate Ceremonies.

In relation to the continuum of care for Addictions and Mental Health, our program is designed to meet the needs of Early Recovery; Pre-Contemplation, Contemplation, to Early Recovery... as described in the (Prochaska and DiClemente's Model) also utilizing the Developmental Model of Recovery; Transition, Stabilization, and Early Recovery stages... (Gorski)

We are confident that the program clearly demonstrates our commitment to wellness.

All my relations,

Patricia Starr
Executive Director

Philosophy

Our vision of Service is one of a Holistic Model as an evidenced-based residential treatment programme that is supported by a number of well defined beliefs, which include:

- It is consistent with the public health approach.
- There is an understanding that no single treatment is appropriate for all individuals.
- It is recognized that effective treatment attends to multiple needs of the individual, not just his or her substance misuse.
- It acknowledges that counselling (individual and/or group) and other behavioural therapies are critical components of effective treatment for addiction.

Service Goals

To teach clients that chemical dependency is a disease, and this disease causes physical, psychological, social and spiritual problems. And the total person is affected.

Program Objectives

The Holistic Model of Recovery will inform and teach the clients to:

- Be fully informed of the exact nature of the disease of addiction.
- Have accurate information to recover from substance abuse and addiction.
- Objectively evaluate their own alcohol and drug use to see if they have a substance abuse or addiction problem.
- Take ownership of the information; they'll need to apply it to themselves, and then they'll need to put what they've learned into action.
- Recognize that relapse is not an accident and some people fail to recover because they do not understand their addiction and, therefore, fail to do what is necessary to avoid relapse.

Program Description

Developmental Model of Recovery (Gorski-CENAPS Model)

The 7-week and 8-week programs are designed to move the individuals through the progressive stages of recovery. The developmental model of recovery is based upon a series of beliefs: recovery is a long-term process, recovery requires total abstinence from alcohol and other drug use, plus active efforts toward personal growth, there are underlying principles that govern the recovery process, the better we understand these principles, the easier it will be for them to recover, and understanding alone will not promote recovery. (Gorski and Miller, 1989)

Recovery is a developmental process and means “to grow in stages or in steps.” The following briefly describes the 3 stages clients will move through:

RECOVERY STAGE

MAJOR THEME

1. Transition

Giving up the need to control alcohol and other drug use.

We need to accomplish three major goals during transition:

- Recognize that we have lost control over our alcohol and other drug use.
- Recognize that we can't control our use because we are addicted.
- Make a commitment to a program of recovery that includes the help of others.

2. Stabilization

Recuperating from the damage caused by addictive use.

Four important things to happen during the stabilization stage of recovery:

- We physically recover from withdrawal from substance use.
- We stop being preoccupied with our primary drug of choice.
- We learn to solve problems without using alcohol or other drugs.
- We develop hope and motivation.

3. Early Recovery

Internal change (change of thinking, feeling, and acting related to alcohol and drug use).

The major goals of early recovery are:

- To change the attitudes and beliefs about alcohol and other drug use that sets us up for relapse.
- Change our understanding of addiction and the role it plays in our lives.
- To explore the meaning and purpose of substance use and learn to cope with life without it.

Holistic Model

Our approach with the holistic model is consistent with a public health approach. We recognize that there is a complex set of determinants that impact addictive behaviour. And we accept and work with individual differences in the client characteristics in both preventing and responding to problems. We believe that within the chronic disease management, active participation by clients is essential in self-management, treatment, and recovery activities. We have implemented a wide range of best practices to assist in client wellness:

- Acu-Detox
- Meditation, and physical fitness
- Motivational techniques
- Brief intervention
- Daily Psycho-educational groups
- Cognitive-behavioural techniques
- Access to Mental Health Counselling
- Equine Therapy
- Incorporating Culturally Appropriate Activities wherever possible
